CONTRACTORS GET PLANS FOR LOCAL FORD PLANT

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

They were pals from high school days on.

What Bill had he split with Frank; what Frank had he split with Bill.

They traveled together always. They were never seen alone.

One night one would see them in Frank's car. The next night they were in Bill's car.

When Bill was broke Frank would lend him money. And when Frank was broke, Bill would help him out.

For years this companionship existed. Both boys were always together.

Then Bill met a little blonde who hailed from the south.

She's a cute little trick—but dumb.

Bill went with her for several weeks before he introduced her to Frank.

Then Bill got a night job—one that kept him at work until eleven o'clock at night.

Bill introduced Frank to his girl friend one night. The next night Frank stepped out with her, after telling Bill he was going to do so. It was all right as far as Bill was concerned.

There the trouble started.

With a woman's love of throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery, the girl told stories to Frank of the things Bill had said about him—magnifying them as she went along.

To Bill she told what Frank had said about him—and she used her imagination too.

The results were that Bill and Frank refused to speak to each other. They passed each other daily upon the streets, they lived within half a block of each other, but they were strangers.

For a month or more this went on. Frank discontinued seeing the girl. Bill continued to go with her.

Several days ago Frank became ill—seriously so. Today he lies in a hospital. Doctors say he has little chance of recovery.

And Bill has forgotten his grudge. For two nights in a row he has been sitting by Frank's side... listening to the delicious ravings of his old chum.

In his ravings Frank tells about his fight with Bill—and how he'd like to make up with him and be friends once again.

For Frank doesn't know that the boy who is at his side ministering to his every want—is his old pal Bill, once more his friend.

Perhaps Frank will recover. The doctors don't think so. If he does, Bill will have his old friend; if he doesn't he is going to lose his best pal.

And Bill doesn't go with the blonde any more.

For Bill says no woman is worth losing one's best friend over.

CROWDS GIVE WELCOME TO PRINCE

BUCHAREST, June 7.—UP.—The cabinet of Premier Julius Maniu submitted its resignation tonight. The resignation of the cabinet was accepted and George Mironescu, former foreign minister, was commissioned to form a new cabinet.

The relationship of Prince Carol and his former wife, Princess Helen of Greece, was not definitely decided, but it was reported the divorce which the princess was granted in 1923 would be annulled so that, if Carol becomes king, she will rule with him. One of the conditions on which Carol was permitted to return was understood to be that he abandon Mme. Lupescu.

It was decided after a conference tonight that Parliament would proclaim Prince Carol king Sunday.

Military and civilians joined in a tumultuous welcome and demonstration for Prince Carol when he returned from France by airplane.

Stepping from his plane he appeared before the government officials and soldiers at the air field in the uniforms of a Rumanian general. Premier Maniu, leader of the peasant party, greeted him and it was apparent the government had arranged for his return probably because of the unpopularity of Prince Nicholas, now a member of the regency.

Popularity Shown
Cheering that indicated his popularity with the military greeted him at the air field, and Carolist demonstrations were organized throughout the city when news of his arrival was flashed from the parliament, where cheers greeted the announcement. The most vigorous opponents of the prince were the liberals, who in reality are the most conservative party. Led by Vintila Bratianu, they had opposed the return of Carol, but were forced to bow to popular sentiment.

After meetings of the cabinet, the regency, and repeated conversations between Carol and government officials had indicated the popularity of the prince, the liberal party leaders decided to agree to his return and election to the regency in place of Prince Nicholas. Bratianu did not attend the meeting.

Various party leaders conferred and a general understanding was reached.

POLICE PROBE GIRL MYSTERY

MARTINEZ, June 7.—Investigation was today being made into the flight of a screaming woman or girl from an automobile in the residential district early yesterday morning. Some residents of the district who were aroused by the screams of the young woman, assert that a shot was fired at the fleeing figure.

The girl, who apparently jumped from an automobile occupied by another girl and two men, ran between the homes on Wallace street, screaming in terror.

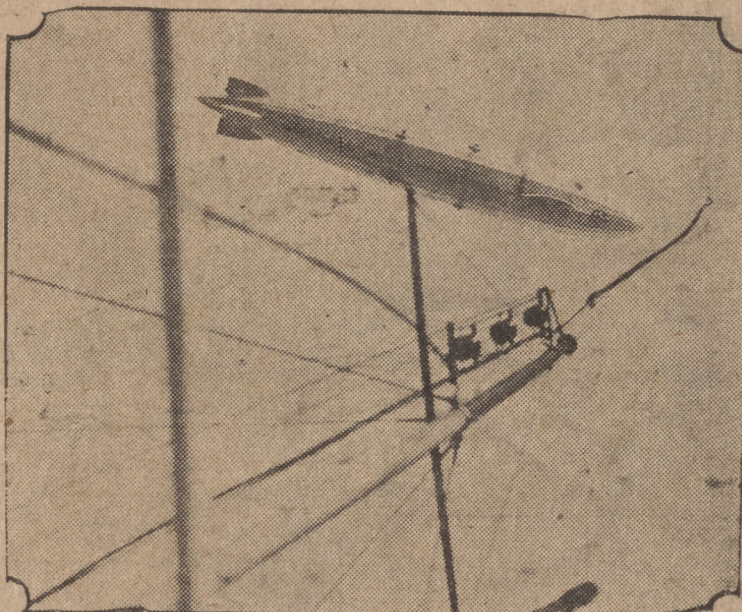

Her cries aroused scantily clad residents of the district, and brought them to their porches to investigate. One resident is said to have obtained the number of the car, and to have recognized the woman who remained in the machine.

All efforts to halt the fleeing girl were futile.

The Southern Cross was flown today from Dublin to Curragh in county Kildare, where the level field affords an excellent taking off place for a heavily loaded trans-Atlantic plane.

Kingsford-Smith was accompanied by officers of the Irish Free State air force and two passengers. His plane is equipped to hold 2100 gallons of fuel, and is estimated to have a cruising limit of 59 hours at 95 miles an hour. He hopes to reach New York in about 36 hours. He had planned to start early tomorrow until the adverse weather reports were received.

JUNE 23 IS SET AS THE LAST DAY FOR RECEIVING OF BIDS

Plans and specifications for the new $5,000,000 Richmond plant of the Ford Motor company are in the hands of contractors of the bay section.

Bids must be in the hands of C. R. Brown, chief of construction, at Detroit, by June 23.

Indications are that a contract will be awarded a week later, and actual work will start on the new industry immediately after July 1st.

CONTRACTORS RECEIVE PLANS

Albert Kahn, Inc., architects for the Ford Motor company have forwarded the plans to a group of contractors. Some of them have been asked to put in bids for the complete plant, and others have been asked to bid on certain parts of the work.

The plans were mailed from Detroit May 31, and on June 3, special delivery letters were forwarded, containing the proposals and fixing the limit by which bids must be received.

Yesterday plans were received by the Pan-Pacific Piling and Construction company in this city, which were immediately dispatched to the head office in Los Angeles. Plans are also in the hands of the following other contractors, Macdonald and Kahn, Healey-Tibbets Construction company, Drywiddie Construction company and the Clinton Construction company of San Francisco. Other contractors will also receive plans in a few days.

ARCHITECTS TO ARRIVE

William Bremmer, the personal representative of the architects, Albert Kahn, Inc., will arrive in Richmond either today or tomorrow, and will remain here during the time the plant is being erected.

RESERVATIONS ARE MADE

At the Carquinez Hotel, 15 rooms have been reserved by the representatives of the architects, and the representatives of the Ford Motor company, who will be here until the new plant is turned over to the Ford Motor company.

TIME LIMIT IS FIXED

One section of the letter of Albert Kahn, Inc., received by contractors, reads as follows:

"Bids are due in the office of the Ford Motor Company, Rouge plant, Dearborn, Michigan, addressed to the attention of C. R. Brown, construction department, not later than June 23, 1930."

MODERN FACTORY BUILDINGS

The plans provide for a modern factory building of steel and brick, and to be made as near as possible from danger of fire. Provisions are also made for a very ornamental steel and wire fence that will surround the property, and also for the beautification of the grounds with lawns, plants and shrubbery.

WHAT PLANS SHOW

The plans show that the building will run north and south, with the offices and entrances at the north end, facing on Scott street.

SIZE OF STRUCTURE

The structure will be 1050 feet in length. The assembly building will be 320 feet in width. To the south of this will be the warehouse, which will be 400 feet in width.

DETAILS OF WHARF

Back of this and on the channel will be the wharf, which will be 500 feet in length and about 50 feet in depth. On the wharf running east and west, will be two spur tracks, and there will also be a spur track running through the warehouse.

SPUR TRACKS PROVIDED

In the assembly part of the building, the east half will be one story in height, and the west half two stories in height. There will be a spur track running the entire length of the building and also a spur track on the east side of the structure.

LARGE PARKING SPACE

The plans show that between the building and Tenth street on the Ford property, there will be a concrete pavement, constructed and used for parking of cars.

SHOW ROOMS AND LOBBY

At the north end of the building, there will be show rooms, a lobby, employment offices, employment entrances, coat and hat rooms.

The main offices will be on the second floor.

RAILWAY TRACK FACILITIES

The plans for the trackage are now in the hands of the railroad companies, and officials state it will only take them but a short time to extend the tracks in to the Ford property. The Southern Pacific tracks to the new industry will branch (Continued on Page 8)

GALLANT FOX, SANDE, WIN BELMONT

BELMONT Park, N. Y.—June 7.—UP—Climaxing his three-year-old career with a smashing victory William Woodward's great bay colt Gallant Fox, ran away with the classic Belmont stakes before 60,000 roaring turf fans today, leaving Whichone, his only remaining rival, three lengths behind.

Brilliantly ridden by Earl Sande, who had him out in front from start to finish, the handsome son of Sir Gallahad III—Marguerite, won the mile and one half race with all the ease that marked his triumph in the Wood Memorial, the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby. From start to finish in this greatest turf duel of many years, it was all Gallant Fox and Sande. This flying pair, carrying the domed dotted silks of the Belair stud, was going away at the finish.

Whichone Second Little Sonny Workman, who was having a private duel of his own with Earl Sande kept Whichone, juvenile champion of 1929, far off the pace during the early running, and only brought the H. P. Whitney colt up in the stretch with a great challenge. But there was no catching "the Fox" and Sande today, and the winner's margin of victory was greater at the finish than at any time during the race.

Three lengths back of Whichone came James Butler's Questionaire, ridden into the show money by A. Robertson, while 20 lengths back completely outrun through the final three furlongs, was W. J. Salmon's Swinfield, with L. Schaeffer up.

A tremendous ovation greeted the new three-year old champion—an ovation which was roared out from the stands and lawns in a vast deafening wave of sound as Sande brought the steaming winner back to the judges' stand. Gallant Fox, which had run such a smashing race, apparently would rather have done it over than face that bedlam of applause, but with Redcoat Murray assisting at the bridle, they finally persuaded the nervous champion to step up and receive the laurels.

Woodward Collects Gallant Fox's victory netted William Woodward $66,040, while Sande brought his winnings astride the big bay colt up to about $18,000.

The experts had made Whichone the choice over "the Fox" and in consequence the winner paid 8 to 5 to win, 1 to 4 to place, The Whitney colt paid 1 to 5 to place, with Questionaire, 1 to 2 for show money.

Victory in this most spectacular of Belmonts, in which interest was greater than at any time since the inception of the stakes in 1867, brought Gallant Fox's winnings up to $198,730, and may lead to making the bay the greatest money winner of all times.

Flying Gal Scratched Flying Gal, a half sister of Gallant Fox, was scratched just before the race.

Rain fell steadily but lightly during the afternoon and while the race was run, but the track was good, and Gallant Fox set a new record of 2:31 3/5 for the Belmont. This time is three full seconds slower than Handy Mandy's American mark for the mile and a half.

There was tremendous excitement during the parade to the post. Gallant Fox, the handsome bay with the broad chest and sloping flanks, stood like a statue at the barrier, in the pole position, with Whichone, the big brown son of Chiclé, in number 3 position.

Surprise Move When the barrier was sprung, Sande hustled "the Fox" out in front, to everyone's surprise, for the son of Sir Gallahad III has no great reputation as a fast breaker. Questionaire, which recently ran a great mile and a quarter trial for the event, challenged repeatedly in the first mile, but Sande kept his mount out in front, flying, and drew away midway around the last turn.

Little Workman held Whichone steadily off the pace and only made his drive when they thundered in.

Vote Charges Made In South

RALEIGH, N. C., June 7.—UP—Campaign managers for Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, this afternoon charged election officials in Carteret county were refusing to permit persons who voted for Hoover in 1928 to participate in the Democratic primary today. They laid the charges before Raymond Maxwell, secretary of the state board of elections, who wired Carteret officials they must not exclude from the primary Democrats who supported Hoover two years ago. Simmons leaders also charged the Australian ballot law, under which the Australian ballot system is being used in North Carolina primary for the first time, is being violated in Raleigh and other sections by election officials who are opening ballots before they are placed in the boxes.

Harness Shop Closes Doors

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—UP—Established since 1824, St. Louis' oldest saddlery concern has at last given way to the automobile and closed its doors. Two decades ago the J. B. Sickles company, makers of fine harness and saddles, was widely known through 15 Western states but following the war the onslaught of the automotive age caused business to drop off until it finally was decided to close the business. When St. Louis was the frontier of the West and all wagon trains started from here the company did a large business. As the west and middle west became populated the

POOR PUTTING COST GLENNA TITLE

LONDON, June 7.—UP—Americans who watched the final match of the 1930 British Women's golf championship played over the Formby course probably will remember above all other features the disappointing putting of Glenna Collett.

On the morning round, which resulted in a five-up lead for the new British champion, Diana Fishwick, Miss Collett took three each on five holes and the champion ship.

Six and a cistyard putts went to the lip or the cup only to hang on the edge. Short putts ran along the rim of the cup or struck the lip and bounced out. The little white ball simply refused to slip into the cup and remain there.

The break down of her putting game worried Glenna and the seemingly effortless play of the English girl also added to the American sufferer's strain.

Diana Fishwick plays without any apparent effort. She merely reaches into the bag, pulls out a club and with a full, easy, upright swing sends the ball straight for the pin. She plays with such grace and freedom of effort or strain that 18 holes of spirited golf leave her surprisingly fresh.

The stance of Miss Fishwick is rather unusual since she employs no crouch. She has no orthodox style but has perfect form. Her style might almost be classified as hybrid.

She gets the most out of her shots with the least effort. She believes that any form or style that gets one consistently to the green and off to the next tee in the fewest number of strokes cannot be far wrong.

When she putts, she merely takes a hurried glance at the roll of the green, the lie of her ball and then, from an upright position, glances with a nodding motion of her blond head two or three times at the hole and the course she wants her ball to follow and then taps it.

business still further increased with farmers demanding harness for their horses and practically all delivery in the cities being done by teams.

But with the advent of the tractor and the truck and the exit of the horse harness makers here began to turn their hand to upholstery work. The Sickles company is one of the last of the better-known harness houses to shut down.

Trojans Take Annual Track Meet In East

CHICAGO, June 7.—UP—The Trojans of the University of Southern California this afternoon won the honors in the ninth annual national collegiate track and field meet, while a great band of athletes were breaking one world's record and five other meet records. The invaders from the Pacific coast scored a total of 55 1-3 points. Washington was second with 40 points and Iowa finished third with 30 1-6 points. Ohio scored 29 1-10 points for fourth place and Illinois 27 17-10 points for fifth place. The greatest individual performance came in the "race of the century," when Frank Wyckoff, curly-haired Southern Californian stepped the 100 in :09.4 seconds without the aid of starting blocks. That time is one-tenth of a second better than the officially recognized mark held by Eddie Tolan, Negro, of Michigan.

Odd Fellows 9 To Meet Bankers

The rabbit dealers of Richmond have been well patronized by local Odd Fellows during the past week, for the lodges are scheduled to play their thirteenth game of the 1930 season today.

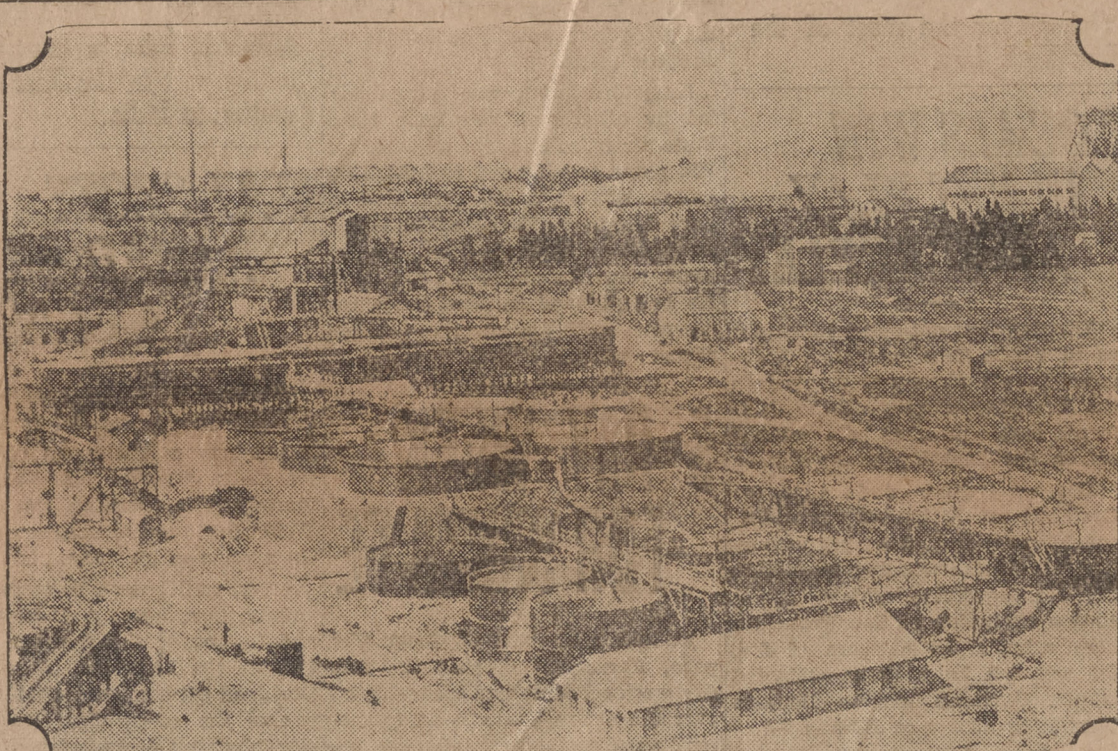

The only obstacle between them and a record of 13 straight victories is the Central Bank nine of Oakland. The local athletes will battle with the old, old "13" jinx at 2:30 o'clock on the San Pablo diamond.

The battery for the Richmond Odd Fellows has not yet been announced by Manager Harry Skow for several of his best twirlers have received injuries to their pitching arms during the past few weeks.

to the stretch. Gallant Fox made a wide turn and when Workman shook up Whichone and the big brown colt began to cut down his rival's lead, the crowd roared that "The Fox" was beaten.

But Sande settled to his task, and hand rode Gallant Fox down past the uprorn in the stands, with the bay responding gallantly and actually pulling away from Whichone at the wire.

FAMILY SPLIT OVER DERBY WINNINGS

QUEBEC, June 7.—UP—The Daughertys of Brooklyn, upon whom a $149,000 derby sweepstakes ticket fell like an apple of discord, turning father against sons, composed their quarrel today by compromise, in light of a new danger. The compromise was that the two sons, Edward P. Dougherty and Daniel Daugherty Jr., will share fifty-fifty in the $149,262, with Daniel Daugherty, still querulously complaining, left out.

The squabble was settled, however, because of the impending descent upon the elder Daugherty of a missing wife—hitherto not reckoned with in the division of the spoils—who threatened to sue the elder Daugherty for his share, if his name against a document fore-

Suit Threats The threatened suit brought the three male Daughertys into one solid front against Mrs. Daugherty and the result was a signed agreement by which the father relinquishes all claim.

Papa Daugherty, once a bartender and in later days a doorman, had spoken too loudly of his claims to the winning ticket, which drew Blenheim in the Canadian army and navy sweepstakes. His noise attracted the attention of his wife, from whom he has been separated and when the three men arrived here to lay separate claims to the cash, they were informed of Mrs. Daugherty's intention to sue for dower rights and non-support.

The Daughertys went into an immediate huddle. They explained to Daniel, Sr., that if he did succeed in getting any of the money, his wife would take it away from him. Stop Payment

There were other complications, too, in the offing. The sweepstakes management threatened to stop payment on their check unless the quarrel was ended.

So the agreement was made, and the elder Daugherty grudgingly set his name against a document fore-swearing all claim to the stake. He was still bitter.

"But I can't do anything about it," he said. "The boys refuse to share with me, and that's that."

Throughout the jockeying for possession of the award, however, it was young Edward P. Daugherty who outsmarted the other claimants to the fortune.

Arriving here yesterday in carpet slippers, because of "sore feet," the 19-year old broker's clerk disappeared while his father and brothers were telling the world about their luck and submitting to newspaper photographers. Still in his carpet slippers, Edward presented the ticket, and the $149,262 was deposited in a bank to his credit.

Too Busy Daniel senior, had been too busy giving out interviews on his "rights" to the ticket to take part in the actual transfer of the money, and when he came out of the daze due to the unaccustomed glory of finding himself a public character, the trick was done.

Edward had scarcely disappeared from the Army and Veterans' Association headquarters before the elder Daugherty and Daniel Jr. arrived there.

"Where's young Edward?" asked the father.

"Gone to the bank," replied G. H. Garrick, secretary of the association.

Gloomily, the disappointed claimants made their way back to the hotel to wait for the return of the triumphant Edward.

The Daughertys intend to return to Brooklyn tomorrow, after a brief tour of the city. Whether they will make the tour together or not remains to be seen.

Edward says he already has the money safely invested.

Captain Saved From Sea Death

WELLFLEET, Mass., June 7.—UP—Fogbound and at the mercy of a rough sea for more than 24 hours, during which time he was without food or water, Captain Jacob Brigham of Dorchester, landed in an open boat at Cahoon's Hollow Coast Guard station here today. Coast Guards reported that the skipper must have rowed his dory 50 miles to reach shore after becoming separated in dense fog from his schooner, the Dacia.

Farm Worker Found Slain

EASTON, June 7.—UP—The body of John Bernacchi, 26, farm worker was found with the head blown off and a shotgun beside it on the Kay Lauritsen ranch two miles west of here early today. Authorities said they believed it was a case of suicide, although friends said they knew of no cause for such an act. Gino Chiggi, Fresno, employe on the same ranch, found the body and the sheriff and coroner were notified. Arrangements were being made late today for an inquest.

Shasta Will Be Revived Today

REDDING, June 7.—UP—The "ghost town" of Shasta, once a thriving pioneer settlement in the gold rush days, but now a "deserted village" will renew scenes of its picturesque past tomorrow with the arrival of hundreds of former residents for a pioneer day celebration.

A pageant depicting the early days at Shasta, with its covered wagons, bearded miners, calico clad women folks, stage coaches, Indians, Chinese and gamblers will be a feature of the occasion.

NET WORK OF AIR LINES SEEN

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Forecasting a network of air transport lines over land and sea and 1,000,000 private plane owners within the next 15 years, Charles Coolidge Parkin, manager of the Curtis Publishing company's research division gives an insight into a probable development of the aviation industry.

The forecast, however, is contingent upon many factors, among which are the need for mechanical improvements, reduction in prices of planes and costs of flying instruction, support from federal and local governments and educational advertising.

The survey of the nation was completed by Parkin in a trimotored plane in which he covered 20,387 miles and had interviews with the aviation industry's leaders besides a questionnaire sent to plane owners. Parkin is a recognized authority on business forecasts, as he accurately predicted the present state of development of the automotive industry in 1914.

Parkin scouts the theory that there is a close correlation between the automobile industry and aviation. "Much confusion has come about," he said, "through believing that the aviation industry in all essential respects closely parallels the automobile industry. It is true that in many sales and advertising problems there is a close analogy between the two industries; on the other hand, in creation of markets and in methods of early financing, the industries present marked contrasts."

He predicts that within 15 years there will be only 20 makes of planes, which will account for more than 90 percent of the total production, within 10 years. These will be produced by only 10 companies he said.

Airport At Denver Grows

DENVER, April 7.—The Denver municipal airport, which recently was awarded the second AIA rating in the United States, is being beautified by the city landscaping department.

A large lawn has been planted, and trees, bushes and shrubbery are being put in. Cement sidewalks are in process of construction, and huge flower beds are already growing. One large flower bed is laid out in the form of letters, which spell the word Denver, and can be seen by the pilot and passengers of an approaching ship for considerable distance. Before the landscaping department has finished, the local airports will be one of the most beautiful in the United States.

WOMEN FAVOR ENFORCEMENT OF DRY ACT

DENVER, Colo., June 7.—UP—Three million women, through their delegates to the General Federation of Women's clubs today went on record as favoring a rigid enforcement of prohibition.

The prohibition resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority after a clash on the convention floor over the phraseology of one section of the declaration. Mrs. Florence Dibert of Johnstown, Pa., sought to have the resolution amended so that it would make no mention of "sinister influences" seeking to undermine the efficacy of the eighteenth amendment.

"I feel that the people are honest in their conviction and that the word 'sinister' is very strong," Mrs. Dibert told the delegates.

Called "Sinister" Mrs. Virginia White Spool of Washington, D. C., drew the most applause in favor of retaining the questioned word when she said: "I am in favor of the word 'sinister' and all of the resolution as it stands. Any movement that seeks to undermine our government and break down laws is sinister."

"The return of the saloon is now banned by law. And ladies, don't deceive yourselves, we will have the saloon again if the prohibition laws are not kept intact."

Mrs. J. C. Pearson, of Marshall, Okla., chairman of the department of American Citizenship, who offered the resolution, startled the delegates when she arose and announced she had purposely included the word to obtain the opinion of the delegates.

Lindy Peak
Only one of the resolutions coming before the delegates today was turned down. It endorsed the naming of a mountain peak in Colorado in honor of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

It was the majority of opinion that the federation should not favor the resolution, as it also urged the federal government to build a road and rail system to the peak.

Delegates stated that others of the states also would like to have the aid of the government in the building of roads and probably would be willing to name peaks in honor of Colonel Lindbergh in order to have the work done.

Resolutions endorsing the proposed celebration of the 20th anniversary of the birth of George Washington and the Bald Eagle protection act were unanimously approved.

A last minute substitute resolution pertaining to and endorsing further systematic development of public health work was postponed until next Thursday.

Hoover's Address
The original resolution made mention of President Hoover's inaugural address, in which the chief executive said there was need for cooperation by the federal government in the work.

The substitute resolution made no mention of the address nor of the federal government, merely stating the federation endorsed the principles of further development and strengthening of state and local health activities.

An expected battle over handling of the endowment and war service trust funds of the Federation failed to materialize when the report of the revisions committee was postponed until Monday.

A proposed change to the articles pertaining to the trust funds would place the management in the hands of a finance committee instead of the board of trustees.

Prize winners in an essay contest on "Right Use of Leisure" were announced. The winners: First, Mrs. S. E. Sparling, Demopolis, Ala.; second, Mrs. Raymond Berry, Provo, Utah; third, Mrs. B. G. Leighton, Hibbing, Minn.; fourth, Mrs. William Goodson, Liberty, Mo.

The trend in crowded cities, says a motor expert, must be toward smaller cars than any so far produced. We are trying to visualize the pedestrian of the future, knee-deep in sedans.

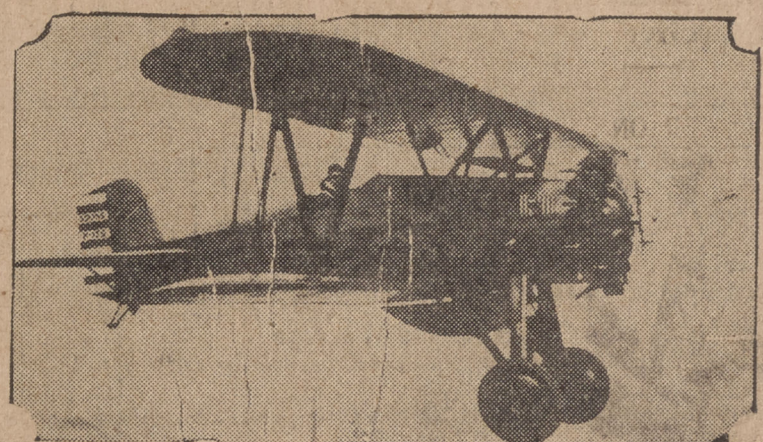

PAINFUL CORNS

Loosen—Lift Out
A little known Japanese herb, the discovery of an eminent German scientist (Dr. Stickel) instantly soothes the corn, callous or wart, then loosens it so that shortly you can lift it right out. This new discovery called "Corn Fly" excites the white blood corpuscles to action and granulates the corn at its root so that it drops out and leaves no trace of scar or soreness.

You will also find "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder," a boon for sore, tired or perspiring feet.

"Corn Fly" for corns, 35c, "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder," 25c, and "Corn Fly Bunion Remedy," 50c, (all three—$1.10 value—for $1.00), are sold under a positive money-back guarantee by Hi-Gene Co., Newark, N. J., or local druggist.

Police On Guard In Escape Plot

MANSFIELD, O., June 7.—UP—A large force of Mansfield police and deputy sheriffs armed with machine and riot guns were stationed about the walls of the Mansfield reformatory tonight in preparation for a scheduled appearance of gangsters in a purported jail delivery plot.

Machine guns were trained upon the gates of the institution, which recently received 266 penitentiary convicts following the Columbus prison fire.

Superintendent T. C. Jenkins issued an appeal for local authority assistance after receiving a tip that gangsters were planning a delivery during the night. Extra guards were furnished until the forces in the jail were increased to more than 100.

Lobby Probe To End Soon, Report

WASHINGTON, June 7.—UP—The sensational six months inquiry into activities of Washington lobbyists may be concluded next week by the Senate lobby committee without further action in the Bishop Cannon case.

Some members of the committee made known privately tonight their belief that no further action will be taken against Bishop Cannon of the Methodist church South, for his refusal to tell his campaign expenditures in the anti-Smith presidential campaign of 1928, and his action in walking out of the Police Hunt For Missing N. M. Salesman

SALT LAKE CITY, June 7.—UP—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Lowell A. Fox, Zuni, N. M. salesman, deepened today as Sheriff R. L. Roberts, of Gallup, N. M. and two friends of Fox participated in the search for the man. Fox's bloodstained car was found on the Saltair highway northwest of here Wednesday night.

Sheriff Roberts, accompanied by C. G. Wallace and C. H. Kelsey, representatives of the Liffeld Trading company, of Zuni, arrived here last night. They examined Fox's jewelry and other Indian goods and found them intact, this discovery dissipating the theory that robbery was the motive for an apparent attack upon the salesman.

Conflicting reports added to the mystery. Fox's car was reported to have been seen on the roadside at 10 p. m. Wednesday, and he was said to have been seen in a hotel lobby here at 9:15 p. m. and on the street at 11 p. m. Investigators were not inclined to believe he had been murdered, but they were unable to advance any reason for his disappearance.

School nurse says

all girls should know this

When Moods again returned, the old man repeated his performance. He walked over to where she stood. Disregarding his presence, Moods drank a huge helping of liquor and glared at him with drink-dazed eyes.

"Don't look at me," commanded the old man. "Take those black eyes away."

An exclamation of drunken contempt escaped Moods as she uttered herself heavily. She was thoroughly drunk. She poured another drink, resolved to drink herself into a stupor.

"She had blue eyes—good eyes," continued the man sorrowfully, "not black eyes, evil eyes."

Consoled by the liquor, Moods found it possible to laugh. No longer did the man frighten her. He was just a confused patron, talking about somebody's blue eyes. Fortified by still another drink, Moods was emboldened to ridicule him.

"All these years I am scared and hide from you," she said, somewhat reproachfully. "Yet, you remember nothing. You forget, but I never forget how you buy me, because I love you. Moods loved you, but she is not white enough. You kick me out so you can go to white woman—white like yourself!"

No longer were her words touched with contempt. As she detailed his conduct of years ago her voice became harsh, bitter. As she mounted charge upon charge she was speaking with shrill vehemence. Duke moved closer to her.

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said:

"One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

GOLDEN DAWN

SYNOPSIS

Fair-skinned, buxom, mystery girl, is about to be burned alive by the infuriated black tribe occupying the British Protectorate in East Africa. As the mystic wife of the black god Matingh, she failed to produce rain. Tom Allen, her sweetheart, is forced to England but returns. He knows she is white. She, whip-man and bully, has incited the natives to burn Matingh; double-crossing, he tells her that at the price of her running off with him to the jungles, he will aid her escape. Tom goes to Mombasa to get proofs that Dawn is white. Moods, Dawn's reputed mother, is startled to find herself followed by a wild old man, Dawn's father.

The old man opened his mouth to speak, but was suddenly thrust aside by an almost naked girl, one of the entertainers, who had come from the dance hall to summon Moods.

"It's your turn, Moods," she said. "Your song."

When Moods went into the dance hall, Duke sauntered after her, the old man returning to his lonely table. Upon Moods' arrival on the rude stage, she was lustily applauded. The small orchestra played the introduction of her jungle song, and presently her strong voice rose to

"What I say to make him understand," she cried, turning to the bewildered Duke, continued: "You don't even know her name, your baby's name. You can't remember!"

A gleam of consciousness entered the old man's eyes. He furrowed his brow as if in deep thought. He was silent for a time and then, straightening up, he spoke in tones of authority and rationality.

"You devil!" he charged Moods, "what have you done with her?" Moods tore at his ragged coat. "What is your baby's name?" she taunted him.

"What," repeated the old man, "have you done with my Dawn?" Over the room, now filled with curious onlookers, there fell a deep silence, broken only by Duke's outburst of joy. The tension broken, Moods, delicious with the joy of vengeance satisfied, broke into jungle cries, made to seem more terrible when issued from drunken lips.

"He remembers!" she howled; "he remembers!"

Throughout the room sounded excited voices. Attracted to the scene by the report that a drunken jungle woman had attacked a patron, they had gathered around to witness the customary rough-house spectacle. But they readily saw that something deep and mysterious actuated the woman.

It was the revolt of the discarded black woman against the man who spurned her love.

Several patrons prepared to restrain Moods from inflicting violence on the man, and edged closer to her. But the madman of the man under the attack, disarmed their fears. Plainly deranged himself, he was in no danger. But now that he had reclaimed his reason and pronounced his daughter's name, they again had fears that violence would be done.

"I gave your Dawn to Matingh!" Moods cried, to climax the tale she had heaped on the helpless wreck. "She is the black god's bride!"

From beneath his ragged coat the old man drew a murderous knife. Moods alone of all the crowd in the room appeared oblivious to her danger. Stupefied by liquor and even more intoxicated by her own emotions she had lost all sense of both sight and sound. With incredible speed and force the little old man plunged the knife into her bosom. She emitted a startled scream of pain then, as the man withdrew the blade, sank to the floor.

None of the crowd moved for several seconds. In seeming surprise, the man inspected the bloody weapon. He touched the blade as if to assure himself that the crimson stains really were blood. A moment later, as his wonted expression of imbecility overspread his countenance, his fingers relaxed on the knife and it clattered to the floor of the fallen Moods.

Surprisingly, there followed none of the tumult which usually attends a murder. Such excitement as ensued was profound rather than demonstrative. Geng Lee, mysteriously apprised of the homicide, appeared from another room and swiftly and adroitly began to prepare himself for the questions of the police.

"What's happened?" he demanded.

Silently, the surrounding witnesses pointed to the body of Moods. At a questioning look from Geng Lee, the old man, who had returned to his own table, was named her slayer.

While Geng Lee's hasty operations were progressing in the tiny rear room, Tom and Pigeon arrived at the entrance and found it barred to them. They loudly besought admittance, but were advised by an attendant that an accident had taken place and nobody but the police were to be admitted.

800 AIRPLANES FOR ARMY, NAVY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Ready in an instant emergency to scout, bomb and torpedo enemy warships, the Navy has 800 planes on America's coasts, carriers and warships, it was revealed here by David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics.

The Navy has aircraft carriers which are complete units, he said. They have landing fields, a large number of planes, quarters for personnel and have shops for repair and even for manufacturing airplanes, the Navy official explained.

In one war maneuver recently Ingalls said that planes of one of the aircraft carriers successfully bombarded the Panama Canal. The vessel was 600 miles out at sea when the maneuver began. It steamed steadily towards its objective and although the "enemy" was forewarned, the carrier successfully launched its full complement of planes 250 miles from the Canal Zone. The planes "attacked" their objective and returned to the aircraft carrier without molestation.

Ingalls said that it was discovered during the World War that shore-based airplanes or anti-aircraft guns were unavailing a carefully planned bombing attack by airplanes.

"Our aircraft carriers are 900 feet long by 90 feet wide and travel at the extraordinary rate of 40 miles an hour," said Ingalls. "One deck has been set aside as the landing field and it is now possible for a plane to land at the stern while another lands in the bow. At the same time 40 planes can be refueled in the center of the flight deck."

The Navy official explained that land planes were used instead of seaplanes because they were lighter and therefore much more effective for military use. In fact, he said, land planes can be flown in seas so rough that a seaplane could neither land or take off.

As Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, made the statement in January that the new Richmond plant would be finished and ready for operation this year, it is believed that a large force of men will be employed during the construction period.

TO DRIVE PILES FIRST

As soon as the contracts are awarded, the first work to be done will be the driving of the piles. It is understood that the plans call for the driving of 8,100 piles for the wharf and for the foundation of the buildings.

LINDEN, N. J. June 7.—UP.—Eber Kempson, running as an independent candidate for mayor here was searching today for the culprits who took his captive balloon for a ride. He had painted advertising on the side of the balloon and floated it over the town from a rope tied to his back fence. Some one cut the rope and freed the gas bag.

Noise Disturbs Would-Be Suicide

ATLANTIC CITY, June 7.—UP.—Samuel Asch, 19, New York, walked into a shooting gallery, picked up a rifle and fired three shots at himself instead of at the targets. He missed each time. Held for observation by police, Asch said: "The sound of shots fired by other patrons disturbed me and spoiled my aim."

FETE OF HOLY GHOST OPENS IN SAN PABLO

Close to 1000 people attended the opening night of the 29th annual Holy Ghost festival for Portuguese residents of Richmond, El Cerrito and San Pablo at the Maple hall in San Pablo last night.

Cars were parked as far away as three blocks from the hall, and parking space was at a premium.

The park in front of the hall was thronged with hundreds of people, and the dance floors were crowded to capacity.

This morning's festivities will be ushered in by a mammoth procession through San Pablo followed by high mass at the St. Paul's church at 10:30.

Beginning at noon and continuing until three o'clock this afternoon a free barbecue will be served in the hall to be followed by dancing.

Air Mail Route Between London, Brussels Seen

BRUSSELS, June 7.—Night air mail service between here and London is expected to be begun within the next few weeks as officials announce that lighting of the route along the lines set out by American engineers is now complete.

Seventeen American-made airplanes will fly the route, set out along the coastline, which is equipped with navigation facilities for marine craft and which will supplement the night air service, it is reported. The coast line will be followed from Ostend to Dunkerque.

Beacons of 3,000,000 candle power will light the route. They will be placed at Erp-Meire, Saint Denis and Costcamp, it was said. Preliminary flights have already been conducted by the Sabena company, which will operate the night planes.

Regello.

Tonight a fireworks display will be held, to be followed by dancing until midnight. The charmarita will be danced in the upstairs hall and the modern American dancing will be enjoyed in the downstairs hall.

4 DEAD IN MINE CAVE-IN

LEADVILLE, Colo., June 7.—UP.—A coroner's jury late today visited the scene of a cave-in at the Climax mine, 13 miles north-east of Leadville, in which four men were killed and three injured. A formal inquest into the accident was ordered for Monday.

Props supporting the roof of a tunnel gave way without warning, burying the victims under tons of rock and slate.

Four Dead
The dead were: Ralph Port, 32, Denver; Sherman Frazier, 36, Leadville; Fred McMahon, 28, Leadville; and Leon Burton, 35, Butte, Mont. A. N. Wilson, C. E. Parker, and Nick Baroon, Leadville miners, were injured. They were brought to a Leadville hospital, where little hope was held for the recovery of Wilson.

Wilson, a shift foreman at the mine, suffered a crushed chest. A broken rib pierced his lung. Injuries to Parker and Baroon were not regarded as serious.

Men Caught
The point at which the tunnel roof gave way was 2000 feet from the entrance to the mine. The men

Hoover-Senate Battle Looms

WASHINGTON, June 7.—UP.—Another "tug of war" has developed between President Hoover and Congress over legislation to liberalize compensation for disabled World War veterans, with a presidential veto threatened if Congress goes too far, it was learned today.

The Senate finance committee has been working several weeks on a bill designed to meet the approval of the president, but has finally returned to a slightly modified form of the house bill, which the president is almost certain to veto.

Nevertheless, indications today were that the bill would be favorably reported next week by the finance committee.

Wouldn't this new radio device that automatically tunes in stations cause a lot more unemployment?

One hundred men directed by W. J. Coulter, superintendent of the mine, worked frantically until the injured were liberated and the bodies of the dead were removed from under the fallen rock and jagged mine timbers.

CAROL TO BE PROCLAIMED KING

reached that the law of January 4 1926, banishing Carol and ending his status as prince would be amended. It was believed that the amendment would be passed unanimously.

Prince Nicholas received Carol enthusiastically at the palace where the returning prince went to see his son Michael, but Queen Marie was not in Bucharest. She departed yesterday for Germany, ostensibly to visit the Passion Play and to spend some time in Bavaria.

The future status of Crown Prince Carol will be decided tomorrow when both houses of Parliament will meet in joint session.

Two courses were open—one group wishing to elect the returned prince to the regency of the boy King Michael, and the other proposing to proclaim him king of Rumania.

The parliament will meet as a national assembly to debate the situation created by Carol's return from exile.

INDUSTRIAL LAND AT FAIR PRICES

Richmond has always been fortunate in its industrial lands, which have been priced below those of other communities having fewer advantages than this city.

Comes now the development of the Ellis Canal with private finances, adding greatly to the city's industrial acreage and materially extending the city's waterfront berthing space.

Although this is a private project, planned and executed by the property owners of the district, it none the less important to the community as a whole because it creates new factory sites and new deep water. The combination of these two factors, particularly when taken in conjunction with the favorable rail, highway and water transportation facilities already existing, must give new impetus to the city's industrial development in the period just ahead.

Factory operators seeking western sites have never had anything to complain of in the prices charged for industrial land here. Reasonable price has always been a fixed policy, and this has always been followed up with a program of cooperation by the city and the Chamber of Commerce in providing all necessary conveniences for the use of the land. The Filice and Perrelli cannery officials have publicly voiced their appreciation for the help given in making their Richmond investment a success.

Richmond extends the hand of friendship to all prospective new industries and backs up this sentiment with definite, concrete cooperation all along the line.
